About Aya

When you want a speaker who inspires and energizes your audience, Aya Eneli delivers every time. Aya is a best-selling author, attorney, newspaper columnist, life coach and speaker who has been motivating audiences for over 30 years. Inspiring, dynamic and fun loving, she will empower and equip your audience with practical success strategies to create and live lives of purpose, abundance and fulfillment. Her energy and contagious enthusiasm have resonated with organizations, women's groups, executives, youth, teachers, salespeople, medical practitioners, and business leaders.

The author of Live Your Abundant Life, Aya speaks from her experiences across two continents, the trials of losing four children, the lessons gleaned from giving up a successful career to stay home with her kids, and overcoming adversity to become the wife and woman God intended.

Born in the United States, she spent her formative years in Nigeria, and was featured on children's television and radio shows. She earned four degrees in seven years from The Ohio State University – two Bachelor of Arts degrees, a Master's degree, and a Juris Doctorate. Her columns run in various newspapers and she has been featured in Entrepreneur magazine, MSNBC, Black Enterprise and the Detroit Free Press.

Aya and her husband of 15 years, Dr. Kenekchukwu Eneli, live in central Texas with their five gifted and miraculous children, Madu, Kosi, Ona, Kene, and Ikem.
